Nevada Residents Affected by Liver Disease

Dan P.

Dan advocates to raise awareness about the importance of increasing federal funding for liver disease research. Dan was diagnosed with hepatitis C in 2003 and began the one treatment available at the time, but rather than helping, it exacerbated his symptoms. Later that year, Dan was admitted to a local ER after he fainted, and experienced a series of comas; he was told his best course of treatment was a liver transplant, for which he needed to relocate for. Dan received a successful liver transplant in 2015 and recently returned to Nevada.

Sarah N.

Sarah advocates to raise awareness about the importance of early detection and screening for liver disease. At 17 years old, Sarah's father needed a blood transfusion after he was in a tragic car accident; that blood was infected with the hepatitis C virus. Despite being a model patient, the virus went undetected for decades, with no symptoms, until 2022 when he was diagnosed with stage 4 cirrhosis of the liver, and liver cancer. Unfortunately, he was too sick for a liver transplant and passed away less than a year after diagnosis.
